What is an Upper Endoscopy (EGD)?

An Upper Endoscopy is a test that uses a scope to look inside your esophagus, stomach and first part of the small intestines called the duodenum. This test is also called an EGD. These are examples of some reasons the test may be done:

- difficulty swallowing,
- nausea or vomiting
- pain in the stomach or abdomen
- bleeding
- ulcers
- chest pain.

During the test you will swallow a long thin flexible tube called an endoscope. The doctor can see inside your esophagus, stomach, and duodenum by looking at pictures projected on a screen. The endoscope allows the doctor to:

- See abnormalities like inflammation or bleeding
- Take samples of abnormal areas called a biopsy
- Stop bleeding
- Remove polyps
